ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a sensorless brushless DC motor formed by a stator including a plurality of windings and a rotor including permanent magnet poles, inductances of the windings are detected while the rotor is stationary, and then, the angle of the stationary rotor is detected in accordance with the detected inductances.

5